

The digital procurement guide

How to streamline processes and cost with a fully digital solution.

Procurement's pesky paper problem

We know time is precious, so we'll get right to the point: Paper-based processes are tarnishing your procurement department's reputation for driving cost savings, improving service, and expediting execution.

First, there's the printing, scanning, faxing, and mailing of documents. Then comes the constant tracking down of physical signatures for everything from statements of work to supplier contracts. Add in the manual filing, searching, and retrieving of hard copies, and it's no wonder that inefficiency abounds.

Fast relief for slow procurement processes

Organisations that have invested heavily in digital systems but still rely on paper transactions are left with end-to-end processes that are totally disjointed. This, in turn, leads to an array of recurring pain points. In procurement, you're dealing with procure-to-pay compliance complications, and inconsistent customer interactions.

Your best bet for fast relief is to go fully digital. Everything from integrated workflow capabilities to streamlined operations to simplified mobile business dealings is powerfully delivered. As a result, delays, risks, and costs will be significantly reduced while the user experience will be greatly enhanced.

“Signing times are down hugely both internally and externally, and admin time has been reduced massively.”

Think differently.

Paper-based transactions are:

Outdated

More labour intensive
More error-prone

Slow

Days added to approval cycles
Weeks to obtain signatures

Costly

Printing + mailing
Archiving

Procurement pain points

We need to execute contracts faster

We need to increase satisfaction

We need to accelerate our procure-to-pay process

We need to streamline operations

We need to transact via mobile

To streamline procurement, procure DocuSign

Now that you know that going fully digital is the solution to your paper problem, you'll want to know more about DocuSign. The most reliable and globally-trusted service for digital transactions, DocuSign works with the applications, services, and devices you already use. That translates to easy implementation and management as well as immediate adoption by both your team and your clients.

Endless supply of use cases apply

The beauty of DocuSign is that it's designed to work seamlessly with the most common uses for Procurement – and in an uncommonly effective manner.

Statements of work

Easily integrate SOWs into back-end systems and realise fewer data entry errors.

Master Service Agreements

Bring all your MSAs together in a single place for 24/7 access from anywhere.

RFP sign off

Manage complex RFP processes while adhering to milestones, NDAs, and contract terms.

Purchase orders

Ensure financial compliance by using shared templates with preset routing and approval workflows.

Here are just some of the benefits:

Save time

Contracts can be signed in minutes via eSignature – anytime, anywhere, and on any device.

Reduce costs

No more printing, faxing, and overnight mailing.

Increase compliance

A legally binding audit trail complies with internal policies, signing levels and authority, and document retention.

“We’ve seen great value already using eSignatures. The transactions that took three or four days to complete are now taking two hours with DocuSign.”
